Business Cleared In Stock Collapse

Conditions Not Cause of Panicky Selling
Expert Leslie Gould Finds

By LESLIE GOULD

Financial Expert, Boston Evening American

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Business conditions have not warranted the stock market collapse; neither is a new business depression warranted.

This is the opinion of financial expert Leslie Gould, who today issued a report on the stock market.

But what was the cause of the market's fall? Gould says it was not a new business depression, but a "panic" selling.

WHAT IS THE MATTER?
Fear and uncertainty have replaced confidence. There is talk of a new depression, with a fall in the market.

The stock market is in a panic. It is not a new business depression, but a "panic" selling.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 21.—Two men who tried today to kidnap John Cappelletti, 12-month-old son of Secretary of State Louis W. Cappelletti. They failed in their attempt.

The child was being watched only a few blocks away when the kidnapers drove up to the Cappelletti home.

One man leaped from the machine, a gun in his hand, and shouted:

"Give me the baby. I know how to take care of it."

He did not have the child, however. He was with his mother in the hospital. Turn over the kid and we will help you out.

When the child was in the car, the kidnapers drove off. The child was safe.

Brett Will Stay In Mayor Fight

Pledges "Single-Handed" Campaign For Townsend, Coughlin Ideals

Carlton L. Brett of Dorchester, Social Justice candidate for mayor today pledged himself to work for incorporation of the principles of Rev. Charles E. Coughlin and Dr. Francis Townsend into the laws of the Commonwealth if elected.

Brett declared that he made no effort possible to secure a compromise candidate who in his opinion was best qualified to lead the city of Boston and failing in that, decided to accept financial support offered him in order to make an uncompromising and sane administration at City Hall.

"I will now try single-handedly to defeat the man who seeks election to further their own selfish ends," he said.

CURLEY HITS WEALFARE
Former Governor James M. Curley today took offense at the municipal relief department and Mayor Mansfield to back for increasing welfare allowances to winter applicants.

"All persons need more nourishing and more expensive foods in this season and in the winter whether now facing us this is particularly true of little children," he said.

"While Mayor Mansfield and the incomprehensible Board of Aldermen have shown no interest in the welfare of the city, they are interested in the welfare of the city," he said.

"When I return to City Hall next January I will return with all the changes to their full extent and reduce the tax rate."

During a mass meeting at the City Hall last night, Mayor Mansfield and the Board of Aldermen were present. Mayor Mansfield was the only one who spoke.

One Indictment In Cook Fraud Hearing

314 Manser Names Denounced as "Forgeries"

The Suffolk County grand jury today returned a secret indictment against Charles L. Manser, a telephone company inspector, in the investigation into alleged fraud in the nomination of Alvin H. Cook, mayor candidate, and former state auditor.

At the same time 314 names were denied before the grand jury. The indictment was returned by the grand jury in the case of Charles L. Manser, another nomination candidate, raising the total to 314.

Although no official finding was made by the commission, only 301 alleged forgeries are required to disqualify a candidate from the mayoralty fight, which is growing more intense as election day nears.

Manser had 300 names on his nomination papers and the law requires 300 valid signatures. The commission announced that no decision would be made in the Manser case until all the potential nomination candidates had been heard.

Simultaneously with the grand jury action, 24 persons claimed to have signed the Cook nomination papers. The grand jury was called to hear the case of Cook's nomination papers, which were signed by 24 persons.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

THIS IS LIFE

By Robert E. Rogers

The other day the little lending library here in town got ready to close by advertising its stock at markdowns which made it highly available to get hold of some of the books before the other fellow did.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

I was a very early K. L. fan and I was most interested in the book of the same name by Katherine Fullerton Gerould.

Colloquial Style Of Youth Is Noted

It is not a very long time ago when a colloquial style was a thing of the past. For many years it was a thing of the past. For many years it was a thing of the past.

When I was a young man, I was a fan of the colloquial style. I was a fan of the colloquial style. I was a fan of the colloquial style.

Here is the story of a young man who was a fan of the colloquial style. He was a fan of the colloquial style. He was a fan of the colloquial style.

Vermont Adventure Especially Interesting

I was particularly interested in the Vermont adventure at Brattleboro, where he lived with his wife who was a Banister. He apparently knew the Banisters and did not like them particularly well, and used them for a fairly lengthy period of time.

Eventually when it came time for them to go "home," after R. K. a bad bout with pneumonia, we catch a little something of the feeling behind the dressing-up he gave it in his tale "A Habitation Enforced" and the grand poem "Sussex."

Gloucester Masterpiece In Recent Film Recalled

But I am forgetting the picture of English school boy life behind "Stalky and Co." and his experiences at Gloucester which eventually led to the masterpiece, recently so superbly done in the films, "Captains Courageous."

And I have no room for his South American experiences and the story of the quiet home life, out of which were born "Puck of Pook's Hill" and "Farewell Rewards and Fairies" and "They" and many of the "Just So" stories and poems.

It is easy to say that he was a Tory and a devoted liberal. But into his Toryism entered many elements of strength and conviction which we begin to see as he tells of the experience in his life which went to make up his personality.

He was a wise and experienced old gentleman, and this book does more than any I have seen to back up Katherine Fullerton Gerould's material essay "The Remarkable Rightness of Rudyard Kipling," which is a classic of its kind.

Radioland Reflections

By N. F. T.

TAKING a number from one to ten, or even from seven to ten, on the clock tonight and, by way of seeking the most likely to be stand-out radio fare, my pick is 10 o'clock (WNAC), where Bing Crosby and Company will be taking the air.

Column customers have been wig-wagging from all directions to declare that the "Music Hall" hour is back in its stride now that Bing has returned, meaning it's again like it was before Crosby left for his summer vacation layoff.

THIS FAN-TASTIC AIR

As a fan of the "Music Hall" hour, I am sure that the return of Bing Crosby and Company is a most welcome event. The hour has been a mainstay of the radio for many years, and it is good to see it back in its stride.

AUSTEN LAKE

Mr. Scully Calls on Mr. Kelley to Sick Doctor His Shamrocks

IT IS PRETTY GAME OF MR. BILL SCULLY, Boston's only surviving pro football promoter, to sink another bundle of fresh cash on his Shamrocks next Sunday. For Mr. Scully has paid the price of his team's two turnstile flops out of his living flesh and has only a gambler's chance of winning it back during the rest of the season. Still he is no lippy penny, dumb and faint-hearted. The race is between Mr. Scully's cash and courage. He deserves support.

Now, in the face of the widest disinterest, he has done the one thing that seems sure of a boxoffice success. He has hired Larry Kelley, the ex-Yale pass-catcher and most boomed hero since Red Grange, to give samples of his art with the Shamrocks next Sunday. He mailed Kelley a cashier's check, said to be $300, and took an option on his services for the rest of the year. Larry was willing, because $300 is no trash money for a kid just out of his cap and gown.

Mr. Scully's check is the first of a series of similar ones. He earned $200,000 in the Shamrocks last season and a similar amount in the Shamrocks last season. He earned $200,000 in the Shamrocks last season and a similar amount in the Shamrocks last season.

Wanted: a C. C. Pyle

THE STRANGE PART IN KELLEY'S ACCEPTANCE of a one-game contract and option for the rest of the season with the Shamrocks, is that he refused $10,000 to play with the Detroit Lions this fall. He told me over the long distance telephone last evening that the catch in the Lions' salary was that part of it was to be earned in a year-round job in an auto plant. He liked the money but he didn't like the job.

Let me explain. Kelley, C. C. Pyle, a former star of the Yale football team, is a former star of the Yale football team. He is a former star of the Yale football team. He is a former star of the Yale football team. He is a former star of the Yale football team.

The Pro Game Is Confusing

AFTER A LONG PERIOD OF PROBATION professional football has not developed the customer appeal here that is true in other cities where college competition is less acute. This is the sixth season, counting five years of Redskin failure, and if it becomes a profitable one, it will be the first successful campaign from the standpoint of the promoter.

The game is confusing. It is a game of the future. It is a game of the future. It is a game of the future. It is a game of the future. It is a game of the future.

That seems to be an inherent condition in pro-football which the game, if it is to succeed here, will have to succeed in spite of. So many stars are graduated each year and fame is so fleeting that unless a man is a Red Eagle, a Harry Newman or a Grange he is not likely to be missed by the public if his em phatic drops him in favor of a new graduate whose reputation is fresher.

G. P. Marshall Tried It

THE ABSENCE OF THE COLLEGE BUD GAME anywhere is another drawback here, where the football game has been educated in terms of pretty girl guests, the dignified clowns of the undergraduates, student bands thumping and tooting and the great historical moment when the rival regiments romp from their tunics.

The organized college cheer has a much different sound than the go-as-you-please, "Attaboy" form of tribute from the football crowd as George Marshall discovered in the course of his Boston experiment. Mr. Marshall wished to simulate college conditions at his games and, to that end, engaged several female cheer leaders who had some successful co-educational background.

He also employed a cheering section composed of veteran vegetable peddlers and newbies, selecting them for their vocal power alone and scattering them among his customers. But, though the lady cheer leaders leaped and turned handkerchiefs and the hucksters and peddlers screamed a full, conscientious money's worth, the cheering lacked something spiritual. Mr. Marshall was forced to admit that it was just noise and had to abandon the notion of developing a variety spirit at his games. Still, to the very end he clung to his band of horn bladders—grizzled musicians in colored curly caps and campus blazers who looked as though they had just popped in Ossining.

Maybe Larry Kelley can do for Mr. Scully what Mr. Marshall failed to do for himself. It is time somebody did something for a gent so long on courage and so laish with funds.

N E Trade Is Reported Holding Up Usual Fall Rebound Slow in Putting In Appearance

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW
New England business as a whole is going along well considering the general downward tendencies in commodity and stock markets according to current trade reviews. In some directions, however, the usual fall improvement is being making an appearance, and leading interests are hoping their expectations of better trade will soon be realized.

Textiles in particular are slow and the shoe and leather industry has not yet gotten under way in the fall. Highest spot in the market is usually done in the fall. Highest spot in the market is usually done in the fall. Highest spot in the market is usually done in the fall.

From time to time it has been noted here that the mining line in recovery to date has been disappointing. Apparently the government has come to the same realization and is going to encourage it. A fine start could be made by modifying the surplus tax laws and easing the restrictions in the security act dealing with the distribution of new issues. In this way some corporations will be encouraged to use current capital in part for expansion while others will be forced to use new capital for expansion. But despite the more promising possibilities it seems that a change will take time and it will not be until sometime next year that restriction will really start to pick up.

Another point to remember is that the reference to certain value of the President's tax formula that are taken to mean that one in particular will have low costs and low price increases. A number with a construction program, a back as a chief adviser. If this is the case, those who are engaged in construction work fully are optimistic in their opinion. Although it is of the long range variety.

The stock market has had a really stimulating rally from Tuesday's low. As this paragraph is written the Dow-Jones Industrial Average has scored a rise of between 20 and 25 points. The market at about where it ended last week. It is a heartening development and returns confidence to the holdings of investors. But it is continuing to fluctuate. We do not think so. There is undoubtedly some belated selling of accounts that have been on board early this week in take place and there is a possibility of quick profits to be considered. The latter is a possibility.

For our part we would prefer to wait until accounts have been worked a season or two back, take profits on commitments made during weakness and sit back and wait for a secondary recovery. There is much talk of how much business and trade have been, or could be, hurt by the stock market. And the surest way to minimize such effects is to quit it dead and give people a chance to forget. Then a new upturn would have the effect of spreading cheer.

Congress Won't Sanction Foreign Alliances

IN REPLY to a questionnaire of the Hearst newspapers, members of the Congress are expressing overwhelming opposition to any foreign entanglements which might involve the United States in war.

This declaration of official sentiment undoubtedly accords entirely with the overwhelming sentiment of the American people.

Most significantly, the first expressions from Senators and Representatives became public simultaneously with the State Department's formal "acceptance" of the British-Belgian "invitation" to participate in an international conference on the Sino-Japanese situation under the provisions of the nine-power treaty.

The outcome of the Brussels conference is wholly unpredictable.

Insofar as this country is concerned, however, one thing is unmistakably clear and emphatic—neither the Congress nor the people will sanction any agreement by which the participating foreign powers may seek to commit America to any course that might involve us in hostilities.

IN HIS two latest utterances—his Chicago speech and his tenth Fireside Chat—President Roosevelt reiterated his own firm purpose of avoiding war. The declarations now being made by members of the Congress are therefore wholly in line with this phase of the Administration's statement of diplomatic policy.

The nation is, of course, much reassured by these developments.

At the same time, the fact must not be obscured that a DIPLOMATIC policy of "no foreign entanglements" comprises ONLY ONE-HALF of the NATIONAL policy that is necessary to secure the peace and safety of the Republic.

THE OTHER HALF of that national policy is A COMPLETELY ADEQUATE NATIONAL DEFENSE—on land, on sea and in the air.

AVOIDANCE of foreign alliances will prevent our being inveigled by Old World diplomats into fighting other peoples' wars again.

The national defense is OUR SOLE POSSIBLE SAFEGUARD against a war of our own—a war which can be caused by the wanton actions of an aggressive foreign power or group of powers.

Let the Speed Limits Stand

SENATOR Donald W. Nicholson of Wareham chairman of the special legislative commission studying the question of rules laid down by various State departments, believes Motor Vehicles Registrar Goodwin is exceeding his powers.

The law, says Senator Nicholson, does not give the Registrar the right to fix a speed limit of 45 miles an hour at night or on slippery highways.

If that is true, the Legislature, including Senator Nicholson, is seriously in the wrong.

Senators and Representatives write the laws, and it is their duty to deal with highway safety are so badly written that automobiles may travel 75 miles an hour when they should be going 30 miles.

Senators and Representatives must assume some responsibility for the deaths that are sure to result.

Senator Nicholson, therefore, ought to take the lead in providing the highway safety that he claims Mr. Goodwin does not have the authority to give.

And until the courts say definitely that the Registrar lacks the power to fix speeds, the Legislature and the five-mile day limits should stand.

Human life is much too valuable to be menaced by a Boston Hill argument.

State Secretary Hull has no right to slash tariffs and bring in shiploads of Czechoslovakian shoes, textiles, carpets, gloves, glassware, jewelry, penicils, typewriters, buttons and hats.

There is absolutely no excuse for sending American dollars abroad to enrich foreigners who our own people, in large numbers, are given pick and shovel jobs or no employment at all.

New England can manufacture everything that Czechoslovakia manufactures. We should have the opportunity and Mr. Hull should give it to us.

Or he could head for East Boston, a clearer area. That may be.

Wisely, Pilot Towne chose safety.

There ought to be a gold medal for this kind of flir. He does not want to promote public interest in aviation than a hundred stunt men and chance takers. Like the motorist who avoids washed-out roads, he avoids accidents by refusing to gamble with them.

airmen, we think, would do well to profit by Pilot Towne's excellent example.

Repairing the Damage

DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE

By Nelson Harding

Will Rogers sagely remarked that the United States never lost a war and never won a conference.

We certainly did not win the Washington Disarmament Conference in 1920, when the Harding Administration scrapped the time, new battleships were being completed, and Great Britain scrapped blueprints of ships she had not even started to build.

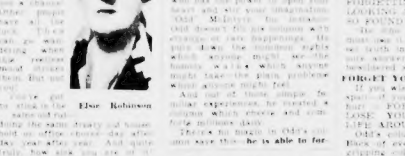

That Conference was the beginning of years of dangerous neglect of our national defense.

Not until 1933, under the Roosevelt Administration, was the perilous "policy" reversed.

That is why, in wartime 1937, Uncle Sam is compelled for safety's sake to build ships and strengthen our Army and Air Forces.

The Roosevelt Administration may indeed have saved the nation by saving the national defense!
